CHEAT RIVER MAKES ITS ANNUAL DESCENT UPON THE MONONGAHELA

Dark Brown Coloring is the Result---May be Expected To Last at Least a Week

COSTS HEAVILY TO REMOVE

Tri Cities' Water Company Spends $85 In 12-Hour Run to Purge Local Liquid From Coloring—Water 99.97 Per Cent Pure.

The Cheat river is making its annual descent upon the defenseless Monongahela river and the result is a deep, dark brown coloring matter in the water that is causing water company chemists and treasurers premature gray hairs and cause housewives to complain.

Nearly every fall the troudle appears. The cause seems to be in the washing of brown stain from fallen leaves on the Cheat banks into the water, and from the Cheat river into the Monongahela.

The Cheat river disease lasts usually a week or two. It is practically impossible to entirely remove the dye from the water, as it is impossible to keep it from getting in. The substance in spite of its color is not considered dangerous, yet it gets the houseife considerably roiled to discover after a wearisome mornings toil that her sheets and table cloths are yellow and dead looking. And who wants to drink water that looks that muddy!

It costs on an average of $85 a 12-hour run to remove the Cheat river coloring, according to Chemist Chester C. Humhries, at the Tri Cities' Water Comany filtration plant here. This continued for a week or so amounts up to a sum sufficient under ordinary circumstances to run the filtratiion plant many weeks.

The water served Charleroi, Monessen and Donora subscribers now is 99.97 per cent pure, according to the finding of the chemist, this being a fair average test. No disease producing bacteria are to be found in the water, and there is at the present time only one bacterium to 20 drops.

State investigations have been made lately of water at Monessen, where complaint was made. The water was found to be as pure as the water used in Charleroi, which is saying a lot. The same grade is used in Donora. The filtration system here is considered by the state health authorities a good one.

JURY ACQUITS CHARLEROI MAN

William McPeck Not Held on Serious Charges, Though Found Guilty of One Crime

OTHER VALLEY CASES HEARD

William McPeck, formerly in the restaurant business at Charleroi, was found guilty of indecent assault but acquitted of more serious charges preferred by his wife, Mrs. Addie McPeck on behalf of her 15-year-old daughter, Nellie. The defense endeavored to prove that the charges against the defendant were framed up and an effort to get rid of him.

The defendant and his wife are now separated. It appears he formerly had some property at Charleroi, including the restaurant business all of which was put in his wife's name. The defendant has been living at Uniontown. He was sentenced to pay the costs and a fine of $25. Judge Irwin in passing sentence remarked that the story of the witnesses for the commonwealth was not very strong and that it appeared that the ends of justice would have been as well subserved if the defendant had been acquitted.

James Maize of McDonald a rather eccentric character was defendant in two cases in which he was charged with aggravated assault and battery He had some differences with Samuel Davidson and Mrs. Davidson over rent, the Davidsons being tenants of Maize. The evidence showed there was a rather lively time and that the defendant allowed his temper to rise considerably. The jury was out when court was adjourned.

Thomas Madden of near Burgettstown was found guilty of the larceny of some copper wire, valued at $85. The prosecutor was H. W. Rank of McDonald. The defendant denied he took the wire, though it was found near where Madden was found sleeping. He was sentenced to pay

FORMER MONESSEN MAN IN HOSPITAL AT UNIONTOWN FROM MYSTERIOUS SHOOTING

Robert Hileman Suffering From Severe Bullet Wound---Brownsville Officers Investigating---Hileman Declines to Talk

Robert Hileman, aged 35 years of Brownsville and formerly of Monessen is in the Uniontown hospital suffering from a bullet wound in his left arm, fired by an unknown man. An X-ray examination disclosed the examination of the bullet and it is not believed any serious consequences will follow the shooting. There has been no probing.

Hileman refused to reveal the identity of the man who shot him, other than so say he is a WeWst Brownsville man. The circumstances surrounding the affair are peculiar. It appears that about 6 o'clock Monday morning, Hilman, with Gordon Bennett, Walter Hartman, C. O. Gue and William Evans started up the Monongahela railway tracks from Brownsville with a supply of liquor. Shortly after this Special Commissioner F. C. Breckenridge of West Brownsville found the man in a road of the Perry distilley. After getting him to a drug store he began an investigation that ended with the arrest of the man's companions.

The four men deny their connection with the shooting. According to their story the shot came from about 200 feet up the hill from where the party was sitting. Hileman pitched forward on his face. The others were so excited that they fled, leaving Hileman lying there.

Fugitives From Pittsburg Home During Wanderings Subjected to Gross Abuse

HOME AUTHORITIES NOTIFIED

Matron Will Be Here to Look After Case—One Girl 16 Years and Another 13 Years Old—Enjoy Themselves at Late Breakfast.

Footsore and weary from three days' traveling, and with stories of mistreatment to relate, Mary K. B. Bennett, nearly 16 years old and Pearl Larkir, aged 13 fugitives from the Little Mother's Inn, at Pittsburg, turned up in Charleroi Tuesday night and were cared for by the police. Today. Mrs. A. M. Folks, who is in charge of the home which is located at 5 Brushton avenue, East End was notified by Miss Minnie Richardson, of the local juvenile court committee and is expected here today.

According to their stories, the two girls left the home at about 8 o'clock Sunday morning and traveled to Braddock. They stayed there with an Italian and it was here they were subjected to mistreatment of a most revolting nature, the older girl having suffered the greater. Monday and Tuesday they continued their wandering, getting food as they could. They stopped in Monongahela and then walked to Bentleyville. At that point they told inquiring persons they were from Charleroi and embellished their story by tales of alleged mistreatment. They were placed on a Charleroi car and brought here at about 11 oclock to be put in the care of the police.

Both girls were put in the Pittsburgh home for misconduct. Little is known of their former history. At the lockup this morning they enjoyed themselves immensely. At 11 o'clock they ate their breakfast at a table spread in the burgess' office and had a general good time, though watched by the police.

Investigation will be made of the case, and their is a hint that there will be an uncovering of a system of white slaving in which Braddock people are engaged,

DEGENERATIVE DISEASES

Benjamin Franklin said, "Nine men in ten are suicides." The indifference of individuals to their continued personal welfare which inspired this remark one hundred and sixty-nine years ago applies equally today. Conditions have changed in many ways and some of them are less beneficial for the individual, says State Health Commissioner Samuel G. Dixon.

Carefully accumulated statistics show that there has in all probability been a steady increase in Bright's disease and other degenerative diseases incidental to advancing age, within the past few years. Certainly the number of deaths from this cause is sufficiently high to warrant the serious condition of every individual advancing toward middle life. Of course everyone now-a-days is familiar with the doctrine of fresh air, exercise and simplicity of diet, etc., which make up the creed of the sanitarian.

Few are willing to go to the fancied discomfort of denying themselves the pleasures of eating, drinking or indolent ease. They are perfectly aware to be sure that indulgence is unwise. They have been warned by other people's experiences and not improbably have been admonished by their medical adviser as to the evil effects of certain favorite indulgences. But the fact that a single gratification of their weakness is not likely to be accompanied by any of the forecasted ill effects seems to lead the majority of people on regardless of the ultimate accounting which Nature is certain to demand. The way of least resistance seems to be the popular path.

Probably every individual will admit to himself that he is running a risk and that the ultimate outcome will probably prove serious. Nevertheless continue he will and so there is more than a modicum of truth in what Poor Richard said.

Self-denial and temperance may seem Spartan virtures to the self indulgent but they are worth cultivating if one would challenge Father Time and his grim companion.

ENGLISH FOR THE IMMIGRANT

In a report just made by the United States Bureau of Education, H. H. Wheaton, the bureau's immigrant expert, emphasizes the necessity of teaching the adult immigrant how to speak English as soon as possible after his arrival in this country, remarks the Washington Observer.

The expert says that inability to talk in the language commonly used is the most serious barrier to intercourse and friendly relations between Americans and the foreigners within our shores. He points out that a large proportion of industrial accidents are due to the fact that foreign workmen have not understood the orders of the American foreman.

Greater efforts are being made these days than formerly to give the adult foreigners the advantage of an English education but it is not general enough. We ought to have schools for adult foreigners provided by the state in each community, where there is a sufficient number to justify the securing of a teacher. We ought to make every possible effort to teach them the English language.

So long as they speak the language of their native land they will be more likely to continue the habits and customs of their own countries. Once they speak our language they become more like Americans.

While there is no law and ought not to be any to deprive the foreigners from reading and literature of their own language and keeping it up, we think sometimes that too many of those who come to our shores do not try to become acquainted with its language. We have too many foreign newspapers. We have newspapers printed in every language under the sun for the benefit of our foreign population. And many of these people read those newspapers to the exclusion of their own English papers and periodicals for generations after they have become American citizens.

How can we expect these Americans of foreign birth to became real Americans, to stand up for American ideals and institutions and if need be defend America against a foreign foe if they do not become better acquainted with our language.

It is only through the reading of our literature that our naturalized citizens can get their ideals of what America is and what our free institutions mean. We must do all we can to teach them to read and speak our language and to study it in order that they may be better Americans.

Whether or not Leo Frank was guilty of the crime charged against him, his murderers should be punished to the fullest extent of the law. "Georgia justice," which consists in lynching for a real or fancied crime has already been permitted too great a run. Lynching is never justice and if the desperadoes who have besmirched the fair name of Georgia cannot be brought to justice by the state itself, then by all means let the United States government take a hand.

Generally people look upon a bathing beach as a pleasure resort. But in Chicago with the emphasis furnished by the Eastland disaster, conducting a bathing beach is looked upon as good municipal business, like for instance the paving of a street.

When a prospective candidate bolts the regular party ticket one year, says the Altoona Tribune and is part of the ticket himself the next year he should not be surprised if many citizens remember his conduct and direct their own actions accordingly.

The Federal Bureau of Mines is announcing a Safety First Congress at the San Francisco Exposition. Thus the movement born in western Pennsylvania has spread across the continent.

The Ringgold reunion is being held at Brownsville. Just a handful of survivors are there and there won't be as many at next year's affair.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

The following is clipped from Roy K. Moulton's column in the Philadelphia Star:

Dear Sir: We don't know what to name the baby and we have decided to appeal to you, hoping for some advice in your daily column of Mental Uplift and Higher Ideals. Please favor us with some suggestions.

Mrs. L. P. W.

Certainly, madam. If it is a boy name him Clarence, Percy, Roy, Perle, Cecil, Alwyn, Cyril, Guy or Wilfred. If it is a girl name her Pansy, Violet, Puss, Birdie, Duckie, Tootsie or Dove. Then when the baby grows up to be a 200-pounder the name will just suit it. A great many parents make the mistake of selecting sensible names. This should not be done under any circumstances.

The Greek classic names are very nice. For a girl here is Iodine, Belladonna, Menthol, Sozodont, Arnica, Vermifuge, Hydrophobia, Tragicanthe, Salhepatica, Listerine, Anti-Phlogestine, Alabastine, Scarletina, or Linoleum. The Greek classics contain also some very good substantial names for men, including Erysipelas, Pneumonia, Lumbago, Appendictis, Quincy, Bronchitis, Paralysis, Paresis, Eczema, Appollinaris or Calomel.

But it really doesn't matter what you name the baby, both you and the baby will wish that you had named it something different.

A motorist was stopped by policeman for speeding, whereupon he became angry and called the policeman an ass. After he had paid his fine, the judge reproved him for what he had said to the office.

"Then I musn't call a policeman an ass?" he said.

"Certainly not," said the judge, "You must not insult the police."

'But you wouldn't mind if I called an ass a policeman would you?'"

"Why, no. if it gives you any satisfaction," answered his honor with a smile.

The motorist turned to the man who had arrested him. "Good day, policeman," he said and immediately left the courtroom.

Luke McLuke Says:

The only way a woman can learn to be happy with a husband is to learn to be happy without him most of the time.

It doesn't take many months of married life to turn a candy kid into a lemon drop.

They used to wear clothes on the street to attract the men. Now they go without much clothes on the street to attract the men.

A man can look dignified all he pleases, but that doesn't help him any when there is a beetle crawling around the back of his coat collar.

After he gets one many a man often wonders why he ever imagined that he needed a wife.

If a man took an old fruit basket and broke the handle off and tied a lot of colored rags around the basket and fastened some red onions and a tomato and a stalk of celery on the basket, and then put it on his head and wore it downtown he would be arrested by the first cop to spy him. But a woman can do it and not only get away with it, but also succeed in making the other women jealous.

No matter how good a woman feels, she seems to imagine that it is her duty to impress upon her husband that she isn't feeling as well as she ought to.

What has become of the old fashioned boy who used to make a collection of foreign stamps? And where is the old fashioned man who used to have a collection of old coins which he valued at $10,000 and which assayed about $4.10 when he had to sell it?

When a lawyer is married he doesn't have to go into court to have his objections overruled.

When they are first married she wonders why there isn't a brass band and a delegation of prominent citizens to greet him at every street corner. But a few years later she wonders how he manages to dodge the dog catcher when he is on the street.

THIS STATE IS PRIZE WINNER

Panama Exposition Gives Us Grand Honor For Health.

G. O. P. CREATED DEPARTMENT

Excellent Work of Dr. Dixon in Systematizing Big Problem of Health Rewarded by Judges at Panama-Pacific Exposition—In Ten Years Department Has Worked Wonders.

Philadelphia, Aug. 17.—At the Panama-Pacific Exposition recently the Pennsylvania State Department of Health was given the Grand Prize for the exhibit visualizing the results of ten years' work in protecting the lives of the people of the Commonwealth. This is another feather in the cap of the Republican party, which has been responsible for the creation of the department and its upkeep.

The International Jury which made the award had before them other exhibits from various states, but they were unanimous in selecting Pennsylvania as the foremost exponent in the union of public health work.

It was a Republican Legislature that in 1905 put upon the statute books of Pennsylvania the law which stands today as the most effective measures for the protection of public health which has ever been enacted in the United States.

Governor Pennypacker chose Dr. Samuel G. Dixon as Commissioner to organize this new Department of the State government and every succeeding Governor has reappointed him to this important office. Ten years is not a lengthy time in which to accomplish changes that effect an improvement in the conditions of several million people and yet within that comparatively brief length of time the work done has been responsible for the saving of more than 78,000 lives.

When the Department of Health was created tuberculosis was responsible for one death in every ten. The campaign against this dread destroyer of human life has been carried on actively throughout the civilized world during the past decade. In no place has the activity been greater nor have the efforts to combat this disease been more effective than in Pennsylvania. A system has been built up which covers the entire area of the State and every indigent sufferer from tuberculosis may have without cost, free sanatorium treatment.

The State Department of Health has established one hundred and fifteen tuberculosis dispensaries located in the sixty-seven counties of the State and has three great Sanatoria at Cresson, Mont Alto and Hamburg with a combined capacity of over two thousand beds. They take the sufferers who are first given medical examination and treatment at the dispensaries and bring them back to health. In 1906, there were nine thousand deaths a year from this cause. At the present time, although the population of the State has increased more than a million, there are a thousand less deaths each year from tuberculosis.

When the Department was first organized boroughs, towns and cities poured their sewage into the nearest streams without hinderance and with no consideration for the fact that other municipalities must use this water for drinking purposes. As a result of this condition there were every year in Pennsylvania some forty or fifty thousand cases of typhoid fever and four thousand deaths from this disease.

One of the most serious problems which the Commissioner of Health had to face was this enormous yearly toll of typhoid. Within ten years there has been a 75 per cent. reduction in the annual number of deaths and illnesses from this cause.

Soon after the establishment of the Department a division was organized for the distribution of diptheria and tetanus antitoxin. At the present time there are six hundred and seventy-one stations where physicians may secure antitoxin free of cost for those who are unable to pay for it. Without the use of antitoxin diptheria is one of the most deadly diseases of childhood. With a mortality of 40 per cent: with antitoxin promptly administered this has been reduced to between seven and eight per cent. As a result thousands of children owe their lives to the Department's efforts in this direction.

One of the Department's important works is the medical inspection of the children in the fourth class school districts. These include all the school districts with a population of less than five thousand. During the past year more than four hundred thousand school children have been inspected. Of this number some 76 per cent were found to be defective. As the majority of these defects are remedied and if they were undiscovered thousands of these children would be seriously hampered in their struggle to secure an education.

The Department, in addition to the direct supervision of public health work along the lines mentioned, is continually co-operating with and stimulating the Board of Health in urban communities and endeavoring to arouse all of the agencies philanthropic and charitable to aid in the reduction of disease and suffering.

The Traveling Public Health Exhibit is maintained which covers all the subjects relating to public health.

In addition to this work the Department issues regularly a bulletin and special educational articles which aid materially in keeping the public interest in health matters aroused.

It is not surprising that this tremendous agency which is working continually for the betterment of conditions pertaining to the health and welfare of the people should have been recognized and appreciated outside the boundaries of Pensylvania.

The exhibit at the Panama-Pacific Exposition is crowded with visitors from every part of the United States and foreign countries who are studying carefully the methods used and the results obtained by the Pennsylvania Department of Health.

CHIVALRY NOT YET DEAD

Opposing Aviators Prove That the Finer Feelings of Humanity Still Prevail.

Once there were two airmen—youngsters. They had attended the same school of aviation, they had learned to fly together. They had become fast friends. Then came the war. One of them was German. He went off to give his services to the emperor. The other was a Frenchman. He joined a French flying corps—and when he went about his business of scouting up aloft his constant fear was that he might find, up there in the clouds, his friend and schoolmate. As a matter of fact the first time he sighted a Taube he knew by the way it was handled who it was that steered it. The German recognized not less quickly the flight of the Frenchman. Both hesitated—swinging in great circles. Then duty was too strong for friendship; they charged each other. No, friendship was stronger after all—as the Frenchman was about to strike the German he tipped his left wing perilously and glided past almost on edge. The German did exactly the same thing—and each flew back to his own lines.

Perhaps, says the Frenchman who tells this pretty tale, chivalry, which in this grim war of machines has survived on the sea in the person of the gallant captain of the Emden, has found refuge in the air.

ASSERTS TONSILS HAVE USE

St. Louis Physician Makes a Protest Against the Too Free Use of the Knife.

Doctor Ewing, a St. Louis physician, has raised a voice of protest against the surgical propensity for the use of the knife on the tonsils. For a long time it was the vermiform appendix which was only in the way, but lately, owing perhaps to a growing incredulity in the public mind, surgery has turned more to the tonsil as the superfluous thing which is capable of doing a great deal of harm and absolutely incapable of doing any good.

Doctor Ewing insists that the tonsils make a nesting place for the phagocytes, that class of good microbes which get into the blood to fight great battles there with the bad microbes which infest our systems. The tonsils, says Doctor Ewing, are recruiting stations at which the phagocyte armies are enlisted and from which they march away to fight for our lives. If we remove the tonsils out of the rising generation the rising generation may be left without phagocytes to fight their battles for them, and will fall victims to the armies of evil microbes which will then attack them unresisted.

A Discovery in Steel.

A Sheffield firm has introduced "Tirth's stainless" steel, which it claims is nonrusting, unstainable and untarnishable. This steel is especially adapted for table cutlery, as the original polish is maintained after use, even when brought in contact with the most acid foods, and it only requires ordinary washing to cleanse. It is claimed that it retains a keen edge much like that of the best double shear steel, and, as the properties claimed are inherent in the steel and are not due to any treatment, knives can readily be sharpened on a "steel" or by using the ordinary cleaning machine or knifeboard. It is expected it will prove a great boon, especially to large users of cutlery, such as hotels, steamships, restaurants. The price of this steel is about twenty-six cents per pound for ordinary sizes, which is about double the price of the usual steel for the same purpose. It also costs more to work up, so that the initial cost of articles made from this new discovery, it is estimated, will be about double the present cost, but it is considered that the saving of labor to the customer will more than cover the total cost of the cutlery in the first twelve months. —Consular Report.

Novelty in Motor Vehicles.

A novel motor-driven racer is the invention of a St. Louis genius, who has given the name of the "unicycle" to the great hoop. Though a couple of small wheels, or rollers are attached to the side of the queer craft, they merely serve to steady it when it is still, and are raised when the device is in motion. The motive power is a gas engine of the rotary type, with three cylinders, and this drives a propeller, five feet in length, at such speed that the wheel travels at a better rate than a mile a minute—74 miles an hour, to be exact. The frame which carries the engine, propeller, driver, and fuel supply is very ingeniously constructed with a set of rollers that revolve against the inner side of the big wheel. In this manner the frame remains upright while the wheel revolves. The latter is of aluminum and has a diameter of 81 inches. Its circumference is protected by a solid rubber tire.

Important Discoveries Near.

Sir William Crookes announces at the recent anniversary meeting of the Royal society, of which he is president, that "we are on the brink of striking developments in our knowledge of the structure of the elusive atom." Provisionally this has been its definition: A nuclear positive charge of electricity—exceedingly small compared with the sphere of action of the atom, and consisting of a number of unit charges—surrounded by an external shell in which a number of separate negative electrons are distributed.

TROUBLED BY VIVID DREAMS

Soldiers on Service in the Trenches Are Greatly Affected by Their Terrible Experiences.

Naturally enough the normal dream life of the soldier is profoundly affected by his novel and oftentimes terrible experiences at the front. A British army surgeon in charge of one of the field hospitals has taken the trouble to make inquiries of his patients regarding their dreams. Some of them had developed somnambulism, and were often found wandering about in their sleep with great terror and anxiety depicted on their faces. The explanation usually lay in a dream that they had lost their regiments. In fact, this dread of losing contact with their fellows seemed to be the commonest cause of nightmare.

They dreamed they were wandering in endless trenches as complicated as an artificial maze, or were lost alone in dismal forests. The slightest noise during sleep called up visions of exploding shells or the tramp of armed men, often causing them to cry out in fright. In the face of real danger these dreamers of terror were quite as brave as their fellows. Another common night-terror was the dream of a sudden call to arms to which they were unable to respond because of inability to find some indispensable article of attire or equipment.

Known by Chipped Tooth.

Down at League Island the entire marine corps is shaking with silent laughter at the dilemma of the officers of Company 17, Second regiment, for the company has as members unusual twins.

They are Leslie and Hallie Woodcock, twenty years old, from South Carolina. At enlistment they were promised they would not be placed in separate companies.

In reading the list of those detailed for various police duties in the morning the officers merely mention the name of Woodcock. They realize that one blond twin will report for duty. Further investigation is useless.

One or two of the men have discovered a small piece has been chipped from a front tooth of one of the twins.

"That would be a hot one," observed an old sergeant. "Who goes there—Woodcock? Halt and uncover tooth." —Philadelphia (Pa.) Dispatch to New York Herald.

Soul of the Samurai.

The beautiful Japanese sword which has been presented to King Albert was forged in 1577 by the famous swordsmith, Kakagawa Shichiyemon-no-jo Yukikane, who died in the year of the great armada. To the collector it is the wonderful adornments of the hilt, guard and scabbard of the Japanese swords which appeal. But to the connoisseur it is the blade itself. For the Japanese swords excelled the finest products of Damascus or Toledo, and the great smiths were a hereditary caste, who forged their blades with secret and immemorial religious rites. This blade was the "living soul of the samurai." The finest blades were made of soft magnetic iron, with a hard steel edge, which was tempered in cold water while the softer backing was surrounded with fire clay.

To Speak Japanese.

Strange as it may seem, it is nevertheless a fact (which was admitted in the house of commons a short time ago) that there is not a single officer in the British army who understands the Japanese language!

Some time ago one of the assistant directors of military operations on the staff of the army council compiled a work on strategy, and the Japanese war office authorities perceiving its value, translated the work, and, as is usual in such cases, forwarded the British author some copies of the translation.

The author, not knowing the language, turned over the leaves of the army list and found that not a single officer in the British army was qualified to act as interpreter to the lan-the costs, fine of $1 and to undergo imprisonment in the county jail for four months.

Andrea Roberts of West Brownsville an agent representing the Victor Brewing company of Jeannette, entered a plea of guilty Tuesday to selling liquor without license. He was sentenced to pay the costs, fine of $500 and to undergo imprisonment in the county jail for three months. He was employing the same devices that other agents have used to dispose of beer in the hope of evading the law.

District Attorney Miller said that the brewing company had persisted in doing business in this county, notwithstanding the conviction of its agents. The district attorney made a special trip at one time to see representatives of the company and was promised they would cease doing business in the county. They have not done so, the district attorney said.

Mike Kovac of Crosscreek township indicted on a charge of aggravated assault and battery was acquitted yesterday. The costs however were equally divided between the defendant and the private prosecutor, Jim Saba. Both went to jail. The case grew out of a fight.

"Not guilty on account of insanity" was the verdict rendered yesterday in the case of the commonwealth against Jules Mathies of Charleroi, indicted for horse stealing. It was shown by the defense that the young man was evidently simple minded. He had gone to a pasture field, taken therefrom a black horse, valued at $150, traded it for another horse, and abandoned the horse he got in the trade.

Some one cut the mane of the black horse, but it was not shown whether or not the defendant did this. The defendant himself threw very little light on the theft. It is probable that some steps will be taken to have Mathies committed to some institution.

Vincent Bruce, colored, charged by Fannie Redmond, Washington, with being the father of her child was acquitted in criminal court. The defendant denied the accusations that the girl made and the jury evidently believed his story. The case was heard Monday afternoon and went to the jury Monday evening. No agreement had been reached when court adjourned. A verdict was returned Tuesday, but it was not in proper form and the jury was sent back for further consideration.

Dog Rescues Ice Skater.

Carroll Searls had a narrow and wonderful escape from death while attempting to skate on the ice at the city reservoir. He tried the ice at first and decided it was strong enough to hold him. While skating it suddenly gave way and he was precipitated into the cold water.

His dog saw the predicament and ran across the ice to where the hole had been broken and attempted to drag his young master to safety It took but a short time for young Searls to find the bank and a quick trip home in his icy clothing apparently left him without serious results.—Nevada City Dispatch to San Diego Union.

URGES VALUE OF HOSPITAL

Medical Expert Declares Mother Love Cannot Take the Place of the Trained Nurse.

"Skilful home nursing is a great blessing,' says Dr. H W. Hill of the Minnesota Public Health association. Everyone wishes that every mother might be a skilled nurse, for such services are required at least three to four times by each child for serious infections as well as for many minor troubles But skilful nursing in the home is beyond most mothers, despite all loving desire to do the best for their sick ones.

When actual knowledge of the care of really sick persons is needed and especially where infectious cases are concerned, not only is the average mother's training insufficient for the patient's best welfare, but lack of practice as well as inexperience tells heavily on the mother in her efforts to prevent the spread of infection to others A trained nurse is invaluable in such cases, but even better is it that the sick one should be removed to a hospital This is especially true for the patient suffering from tuberculosis, and avoids danger to the other members of the family as well."

Helgoland's Lighthouse.

The most important lighthouse at the present time, so far as actual operations are concerned, is the light of Helgoland the island which Germany has turned into a naval base The Helgoland light is an electric one and the most powerful in Germany, and is claimed by the Germans to be the most powerful light in existence The light consists of a cluster of three revolving lights, having a lighting power of 40,000,000 candles, a magnitude of light which from figures alone is hard and difficult to realize. The lights are on the searchlight principle, and the cluster is surmounted by a single light, of the same kind and size, that can be revolved independently and three times as fast as the three lights. The single light is put into use in case of accident to the cluster of three. The electric power is generated by two steam engines and boilers, running belt-driven electric generators.
